

American University Washington College of Law

Digital Commons @ American University Washington College of Law

Articles in Law Reviews & Other Academic Journals

Scholarship & Research

2022

Academy on Human Rights and Humanitarian Law Articles on Human Rights and States of Emergency: Unexpected Crisis and New Challenges: Introduction

Claudia Martin

American University Washington College of Law, cmartin@wcl.american.edu

Diego Rodriguez-Pinzon

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcommons.wcl.american.edu/facsch_lawrev

Part of the Human Rights Law Commons, International Humanitarian Law Commons, and the International Law Commons

Recommended Citation

Claudia Martin & Diego Rodriguez-Pinzon, Academy on Human Rights and Humanitarian Law Articles on Human Rights and States of Emergency: Unexpected Crisis and New Challenges: Introduction, 37

American University International Law Review 155 (2022).

Available at: https://digitalcommons.wcl.american.edu/facsch_lawrev/2151

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Scholarship & Research at Digital Commons @ American University Washington College of Law. It has been accepted for inclusion in Articles in Law Reviews & Other Academic Journals by an authorized administrator of Digital Commons @ American University Washington College of Law. For more information, please contact kclay@wcl.american.edu.

HUMAN RIGHTS AND STATES OF EMERGENCY: UNEXPECTED CRISIS AND NEW CHALLENGES

INTRODUCTION

CLAUDIA MARTIN & DIEGO RODRIGUEZ-PINZON*

We are delighted to present this year's special issue of the American University International Law Review and the Academy on Human Rights and Humanitarian Law, which includes two of the best essays in English and in Spanish recognized in the 2021 Human Rights Essay Award competition. It is satisfying to think that this competition allowed a number of participants an opportunity to expound their thoughts on so many important topics, regarding so many areas of the world. We hope these participants are able to use their articles as mechanisms for change.

The quality of the essays was outstanding, making the final decision difficult. We would like to recognize everyone who participated in the competition and mainly the two winners, Roman Girma Teshome from the Netherlands and Paula Roko from Argentina. In addition, a final decision would not be possible without the exceptional work from the members of the Honor Jury who read and evaluated the articles.

The goal of this publication and of the essay competition is to provide an academic venue for scholarly legal writing by human rights experts and activists. By publishing their work, we seek to contribute quality legal writings on particular topics of relevance to the development of this dynamic area of the law. The book also reflects the diversity of cultures and languages that characterizes our interconnected world. By publishing articles in English and Spanish, we enhance and broaden the voices that shape international human rights and humanitarian law in the future.

* Co-Directors, Academy on Human Rights and Humanitarian Law.

We want to thank Sophie Lin, Editor-in-Chief, and Jared Green, Academy on Human Rights and Humanitarian Law Book Editor, of the American University International Law Review, for their dedication and hard work, which made this project a reality.